Entry and Way-finding Signage

Alleman currently does not have an established signage and way-finding theme for the city. During goal setting, it was acknowledged that the community values its identity and wishes that there was a more definitive way to know you are in or have arrived to Alleman.

Along with the physical connection of pedestrian circulation, further connection is established through a family of signage and place making.

The illustrations below demonstrate a range of signage types, mirroring aspects of the current city logo, and locating these throughout town.
